

Salamonie Trapping Camp

at Salamonie Reservoir on October 8th and 9th, 2011

The DNR is partnering with Indiana State Trappers Association (ISTA) volunteers to host a special two-day Trappers Education Course at Salamonie Reservoir.

The program will include:

Education on furbearer species biology

Trapping rules and regulations

Hands-on experience in setting traps and catching furbearers

Skinning, fleshing, and trap preparation

The program will start at 9 in the morning on Saturday and Sunday with education on trapping techniques, ethics, regulations, and hands on experience. Attendees will set traps under guidance of a Trapper Education Instructor with the possibility of catching furbearers.

Attendees will have the option of free camping Saturday night at the Lost Bridge West youth campground near the Upper Wabash Interpretive Center. Trappers will not need a trapping license to attend this program, though bringing knee boots or waders is recommended. The gate fee will be waived for all participants.

Trappers will need to pre-register by September 25th. To pre-register and get more information, contact the Upper Wabash Interpretive Center at 260-468-2127.

Lunches are provided.

There are no fees or costs to attend; just pre-register and show up.

Furbearers and attendees of the 2008 Youth Trapping Camp